

as if

as if this life were but a dream I awoke to find myself asleep, and time before the moment stood as if it were not still as if it spoke without a sound a quiet voice within me called, and I chose not to look around as if it weren't for me at all as if I might see you again my eyes suddenly opened, and did my urge lead onward when,

as if the spell were broken, as if it could not be for real my hope in doubt was covered, and there beside it, nothing lost as if it were discovered
