

At Once

. . . at once from the room out the door down the stairs around the back through the alley to the square across the street along the avenue by bus over the bridge (above the earth, below the sky) under the shade by foot along the path across the stream through the fields to the walls around the front up the steps into the door toward the room at once . . .